Journalism Course Offerings

Spring 2018

We encourage students, especially freshmen and sophomores, who want to explore journalism as a career to take JOUR301, Journalism in a Free Society, as early as possible. And it’s never too early to get involved with student newsrooms, such as The Review, WVUD and STN.

In spring 2018, in addition to our regular course offerings of JOUR 301; ENGL 307, Newswriting and Editing; ENGL 308, Journalism Practicum; COMM 326, Field TV Production; and COMM 329, Broadcast Newswriting, we are delighted to offer….

- COMM 367, Multiplatform newswriting: Learn to write so that your story reaches across all of today’s platforms: print, online, radio and TV. PREREQ: ENGL 110. Will count as either ENGL 307 or COMM 329 toward the minor.

- COMM 418, Topics, News and Diversity: Expanding the question of diversity in news reporting and producing beyond race and gender. Will count as journalism elective.

- COMM 427, Broadcast News Production: Produce, write, edit and shoot pieces to become part of a newsmagazine that will air on STN. Counts as journalism elective.

- ENGL 407, Investigative Journalism: Use the tools of the pros to report stories that expose fraud and reveal cultural trends. PREREQ: ENGL 307, but if you took COMM 329 instead, enroll through Dr. Deborah Gump. Counts as journalism elective.

- ENGL 409010, Topic, Environmental Journalism: A deep dive into the craft of writing about the natural world and environmental justice. PREREQ: ENGL 110. Satisfies A&S writing requirement & counts as journalism elective.

- ENGL 409011, Topic, Visual Journalism: Put the power of images to work telling stories. PREREQ: ENGL 110. Satisfies A&S writing requirement & counts as journalism elective.

- ART 289, Documentary Photography: Capture the attention of your audience by learning how to view & document the world through your camera. Nine seats are saved for J minors. Counts as journalism elective.

Questions? Email Dr. Deborah Gump, journalism director, dgump@udel.edu

Journalism.udel.edu | @UDjournalism | UD Journalism Updates